Newark, 1666.

The Town of Newark was settled in May, 1666, by Puritans who came from Connecticut.

The concessions of the Lord Proprietors of New Jersey, dated February 10th, 1664, offered great inducements to settlers upon the land granted to them by Charles II. The recent union of the rival colonies of Connecticut and New Haven in one province had caused much dissatisfaction in many of the towns of the New Haven Colony. Accordingly, agents were dispatched from the Towns of Guilford, Branford and Milford to view the lands in New Jersey and ascertain the terms of purchase and settlement.

Captain Robert Treat, John Curtiss, Jasper Crane and John Treat were the agents appointed for the purpose, and upon their favorable report to the inhabitants of the aforesaid towns, they were sent back to New Jersey and empowered to purchase a tract of land for a township. They selected a tract of land on the Passaic River, described as "lying beyond the marshes, to the north of Elizabethtown."

In 1666, they purchased, directly from the Indians, with the consent of the Hon. Philip Carteret, governor of the Province, the land which extended to the foot of Watchung Mountain, about seven or eight miles from Pesayak Towne for 50 double hands of powder, 100 bars of lead, 20 axes, 20 coates, 10 guns, 20 pistols, 10 swords, 10 kettles, 4 blankets, 4 barrels of beer, 2 pairs of breeathes, 50 knives, 20 hoes, 850 fathoms of wampum, 2 ankers of liquor (say 32 gallons) or something equivalent, and 3 troopers' coates, estimated to be of the value of 130 pounds or $750.00 in United States money. The deed from the Indians, however, was not regularly executed until July 11th, 1667. Eleven years later a second purchase was made, the two purchases covering a tract corresponding very nearly with the present County of Essex.

There were about thirty families in the party that made the settlement, and it was agreed that six acres should be allotted to each and that the respective locations should be fixed by lot. One exception only was made to this arrangement in favor of Captain Robert Treat, who was to have eight (8) acres to his lot, and be allowed to chose for himself the ground it should occupy.

The town was called Milford, as many of the first settlers had come from the Towne of Milford, Conn., but a short time after, upon a formal organization of the towne government the name Milford was dropped and Newark was substituted in honor of Rev. Abraham Pierson, the first pastor, who came with the people of Branford and who was ordained in Newark-on-Trent, England. It was originally spelled "New Work" or "New Worke."

The money and goods in the company were valued at about $64,000, an average for each of the thirty families of approximately $2,000.

The community continued under the township form of government until 1836, but during that time had twice been granted charters of incorporation.

In 1713 Quen Anne granted a charter of incorporation, by which Newark was constituted a body politic, and corporate in law. The population at this time was about 300.

In 1798 an Act of the Legislature was passed incorporating the inhabitants of the townships throughout the State. By virtue of that act, the people of the township of Newark received a new charter, which took the place of the patent granted by Queen Anne in 1713.

The population in 1798 was about 2,500. In 1836 Newark was incorporated as a City, in the name of "The Mayor and Common Council of the City of Newark."

The City Census, at this time, showed a population of 19,732.

In 1857 a new charter was drawn up by a joint committee of citizens and members of the Common Council.

This Charter was granted by the Legislature and is the one under which the City still exists.

The population of Newark at this time was 64,000.

Newark, 1913.

Newark to-day is the metropolis of the State of New Jersey, and ranks fourteenth in population in the list of municipalities in the United States, the census taken in 1910 giving the number of inhabitants as 347,469. It covers an area of 23.40 square miles, of which 6.48 square miles is undeveloped meadow land.

It is particularly noted for its manufactories and, in this respect, ranks eleventh in the aggregate value of output, in the United States.

Few, if any, communities of equal size approach it in value, variety and volume of product. Although manufacturing is its distinctive note, it is also a great insurance and financial centre.

Newark has made gigantic strides in all things which pertain to the welfare of its inhabitants, and occupies a high position among the great cities of this country in the educational, industrial and other fields.

Its educational facilities are unexcelled; the number and diversity of its industries afford steady and remunerative employment.

The death rate ranks low among the municipalities of its size in the United States.

It is liberal in providing for the moral and social welfare of its citizens.

The phenomenal growth is best illustrated by the following facts:

Contemplated Improvements.

The city has a number of important public works projected, some of which have reached such a stage that their actual beginning is but a matter of a short time. Among them is a plan to reclaim an extensive area of the waste meadow land within the city limits, so as to make it suitable for manufacturing and kindred purposes, and to improve the shipping facilities by means of docks on Newark Bay and on a projected ship canal in connection with the trunk line railroads which now cross the meadow tract.

Another project is a gigantic trunk sewer to relieve the Passaic River entirely of pollution by ordinary sewage and manufacturing waste. Twenty-one municipalities are concerned in the building of this sewer, but Newark will bear the greater part of the cost and receive the major part of the benefit. Work is expected to start in the current year.

Subways for electric car lines to relieve congestion in the business sections are also in contemplation.

The city is also to pass upon a new charter, the fruit of several years of labor and research by a commission which was appointed particularly for the purpose of drafting such an instrument.

Chronological History of Newark.

1666—Newark was settled.

1667—It was agreed by all planters and inhabitants that they should be ruled and governed by such magistrates as they should annually choose among themselves.

1668—The first church, called "Meeting house" by the settlers, was built. It was 26 feet wide, 36 feet long, and fronted on Broad Street, a little north of Branford place. In 1708 a second church was erected, which stood a little further south. The present building, which stands on the other side of Broad Street, was begun in 1787, and opened for public worship on the first of January, 1791. On its completion, the old second church was converted into a court house, for which purpose it was used until 1807.

1668—First General Assembly was held in Elizabethtown, delegates from Newark being Robert Treat and Samuel Swaine.

1668, May 20th—Commissioners of the Town of Newark and Elizabethtown met at "Divident Hill," to fix the boundaries between the settlements.

1668—The first grist mill was built and stood on the north side of First River or Millbrook, near the junction of Clay and High Streets.

1669 to 1672—Two courts were held annually, verdict being by jury of six men.

1670—Newark's first hotel. Located in the home of Thomas Johnson, on the northeast corner of Broad and Walnut streets, on the site of the present Grace Episcopal church. It was called an "ordinary."

1672 to 1675—Four courts were annually held. In that year, the whole province was placed under county and other courts, and the rules of the selectmen terminated.

1673—Newark's population included 86 men.

1673, Sept. 6—It was ordered, "in consideration of the present dangers"—unrest of the Indians—that every man in town, under 60 and over 16, should meet together with their arms.

1673—New York surrendered to the Dutch, and the subjugation of New Jersey followed.

A transfer of allegiance to the Republic of Holland was demanded of the people of Newark, and it appears that 73 took the oath, 11 being absent.

1674—By Treaty of Westminster, New Jersey was restored to England, and Philip Carteret returned as Governor.

1675—Trouble feared with the Indians. It proved groundless.

1675—The Church was fitted up for a defence, and the men of the town working in turn; two flankers were placed at the corners and a wall between the lathe and outside filled with stones.

1676—The first school was established. John Catlin was appointed schoolmaster.

1676—Newark's first Shade Tree Commission. Extract from the town minute book: "Feb. 6. The Town, seeing some trees spoiled by barking or otherwise; the Town hath agreed that no green tree within the town as is marked with N. shall be barked or felled, or otherwise killed under the Penalty of Ten Shillings so killed."

1682—Newark had a population of about 500, having 10,000 acres of town lands and 40,000 acres of outlying plantations.

1695—The first saw mill was commenced.

1696, Dec. 10th—By virtue of a patent granted by the Lords Proprietors of East New Jersey, the public lands and streets had been vested in John Curtiss, John Treat, Theophilus Pierson and Robert Young. In 1804, by act of Legislature, this trust estate was declared to be invested in the inhabitants of the township. The property consisted of the old Burying Ground, Washington Park, Military Park, the watering place and the public streets as then laid out.

1761—First Lodge of Free Masons in New Jersey—St. John's, established.

1765—An Act of Assembly was passed authorizing the construction of a road and ferries over the Passaic and Hackensack to connect with the road previously existing from Bergen Point to Paulus Hook. 1780—The Academy referred to above, which stood in Washington Park, was burned by the English Troops.

Parade was industrial rather than military, the following trades being represented: Tanners and curriers, stone cutters, masons, scythe-makers, blacksmiths, coach-makers, wheelwrights, silversmiths, saddle and harness makers, weavers, dyers and fullers, ship carpenters.

Broad street was thus restored to its original width, 132 feet; Market street to 88 feet and Washington street to 66 feet.

1800—The first company to supply Newark with water was chartered. The principal supply of water came from springs and wells located in what is now the Eight, Eleventh and Fifteenth Wards. There were in all 73 wells and springs. Water was collected in a small reservoir about 150 feet south from the line of what is now Seventh Avenue.

1801—At a mass meeting of citizens rules were drawn up to prevent unlawful residence of free negroes or such as falsely declare themselves to be free. DUTY OF THE PRESIDENT.

3. He shall take the chair at the hour appointed for the meeting of Council, shall call the members to order, and, on the appearance of a quorum, shall cause the journal of the preceding meeting to be read to the end that mistakes may be corrected.

4. He shall preserve order and decorum, may speak on points of order in preference to other members, rising from his seat for that purpose, and shall decide questions of order, subject to an appeal to the Common Council by any member, on which appeal no member shall speak more than once, unless by leave of Council, and the question on appeal shall always be in this form: "Shall the decision of of the chair stand as the judgment of the Council?"

All motions to excuse a member from voting shall be made before the voting or the call of yeas and nays is commenced; and any member requesting to be excused from voting may make a brief verbal statement of the reasons for making such requests, and the question shall then be taken without further debate; and any member who refuses to vote without having been excused shall be counted on the side of the question which prevails.

The previous question shall only be admitted when demanded by a majority of the members present—signified by a rising vote, if so requested by any member—and shall then be put in this form: "Shall the main question be now put?" and its effect shall be to put an end to all debate, and bring the Council to a direct vote upon amendment reported by a committee, if any, and then upon pending amendments, and then upon the main question. All incidental questions of order arising, after the previous question has been ordered, shall be decided, whether on appeal or otherwise without debate.

23. A member may at any time call for the division of a question, which shall be divided if it comprehends propositions in substance so distinct that one being taken away a substantive proposition shall remain for the decision of the Council. A motion to strike out and insert shall be deemed indivisible.

24. When a motion has been once made, and decided in the affirmative or negative, it shall be in order for any member who voted on that side which prevailed to move for the reconsideration thereof at the same or the succeeding meeting; and such motions made under the approximate business head shall take precedence of all other questions, except a motion to adjourn; and when a motion for reconsideration is decided, that vote shall not be reconsidered.

The chairman of every Standing or Special Committee shall give, or cause to be given, notice to every member of the committe of which he is chairman, of the time and place of every proposed meeting of such committe, at least six hours previous to the time appointed for such meeting, except of an adjourned meeting, of which no such notice shall be necessary. Such notice may be given by the chairman of any committee to the several members thereof either personally or in writing; and the meetings of the several committees shall be held in rooms provided by the city for such purposes, except in case of necessity, when a majority of a committee for temporary purposes may order it otherwise. In cases where such notice is in writing, the chairman of the committee shall hand it, or cause it to be handed, to the Messenger of the Common Council at least six hours before the time fixed therein for the meeting appointed, whose duty it shall be immediately to serve the same upon the members of the committee to whom it is directed, or to leave it at his usual place of business or residence. In case of the refusal or neglect of the chairman of any committee to call the members thereof together at the proper periods, the President of the Council may call such meeting upon application of any member of the committee. The foregoing six hours' notice may be waived by unanimous consent of any committee for any special meeting. Notices of special meetings shall state the object of the call.

31. No committee shall proceed to the consideration of any matter referred to them or which is within their general powers, unless a majority of the members of such committee be present, and unless notice of the meeting of the said committee has been given, as directed by the preceding rules.

32. No report of a committee shall be received or acted upon by the Common Council if any member of said committee shall deny notice of the time and place of meeting of such committee of which the report was adopted, unless it shall be made to appear to the Common Council that such notice was delivered, or that the objecting member was present at such meeting.

ORDINANCES.

33. Every ordinance shall be introduced on the report of a committee, or by motion for leave, and such ordinance, when introduced, may be committed and shall then be printed.

34. Every ordinance shall be read by the clerk when presented, and shall be offered to a second reading; but no ordinance shall have a second reading at the meeting at which it was presented or reported to the Council, without the assent of a majority of the members present. Nor shall any ordinance involving the expenditure of money or affecting personal liberty, have a third reading at the meeting at which it is presented, without the assent of a majority of all the members of the Common Council. All ordinances involving the expenditure of money or affecting personal liberty, shall, between their second and third reading, be published five times in each of the daily corporation papers. No ordinance or resolution shall be passed by the Common Council except with the concurrence of a majority of all the members of the Common Council.

35. The first reading of an ordinance shall be for information and on its second reading (except when an ordinance is based on notice of intention), it shall be read by sections, when it may be amended; and it shall then be read through as amended (if any amendments shall have been adopted), before the question is put on its final passage; and every ordinance, in any stage previous to its final passage by the Council, may be committed, and after commitment and report thereof to the Council, an ordinance may be recommitted but any ordinance reported back after having been committed shall be regarded as being upon its second reading.

DUTY OF THE CLERK.

36. It shall be the duty of the Clerk, on the appearance of a quorum, in the absence of the President, to call the Council to order, and to conduct an election immediately for President pro tempore, to act until the appearance of the President. He shall keep a journal of the proceedings of the Council, and enter therein such ordinances, resolutions, orders, etc., as are adopted, by their title or otherwise; shall give also a brief synopsis of reports, petitions and other papers which are presented. He shall also attend the meetings of committees when required, and perform the clerical duties appertaining thereto.

MESSENGER.

37. A messenger of the Board shall be appointed annually, whose duties it shall be to attend the Council during its sittings; to execute the commands of the Council from time to time; also to serve all notices issued by order of the Council, or of any committee; and to perform all such other duties as may properly appertain to the office, or may be prescribed by the Council. Upon and during a call of the house, he shall act as Sergeant-at-Arms and prevent members from leaving, and all persons except members, officers and attendants of the Council from entering the Council Chamber.

COUNTERSIGNING PAPERS.

38. It shall be the duty of each member on presenting a petition, memorial, remonstrance, resolution or ordinance, to countersign the same.

ADMITTANCE WITHIN THE BAR.

39. No person, except members, city officers, reporters, and persons specially invited by members shall be admitted within the bar of the Council Chamber, and in no case shall members' seats be occupied by other persons.

40. Cushing's Manual shall in all cases, when not in conflict with the Rules adopted by the Common Council, be considered as standard authority.

ALTERATIONS.

41. No standing rule or order of Council shall be suspended, altered or amended, unless the suspension, alterations or amendment shall be proposed at a regular meeting, and adopted at the next regular meeting thereafter, by a majority of the members of the Council; but any of them may be suspended temporarily, with the concurrence of a majority of the members of the Council.

This Home was established under the Law of 1870, as "The Reform School of the City of Newark," but many objections having been made to the name as casting a stigma for life upon the inmates, the title was, under the supplement of 1873-1874, changed to the "Newark City Home." The first Board of Trustees of the Newark City Home was Nehemiah Perry, George Peters, James L. Hays, Joseph Perian, Nicholas J. Demarest, William Johnson and James C. Ludlow.

The first Superintendent was B. F. Howell.

The Bureau of Statistical Information.

(Branch of City Clerk's Office.)

The Bureau of Statistical Information, a branch of the City Clerk's Office, comprising the archives of Newark from the settlement in 1666 to the present time, and the library, containing the public administrative reports, charters and ordinances of important cities of this and other countries, was practically instituted in December, 1906.

The year 1912 has shown very gratifying evidence of the growing usefulness of this Bureau. In nearly every case the Bureau has been able to comply promptly with requests for information; and in cases where information was not immediately available it was obtained without delay. The character of the business of the Bureau makes it essential to constantly collect information on important subjects, with particular reference to municipal affairs.

The Bureau has been used more frequently during the past year than ever before by officials, attaches of departments, lawyers, searchers, surveyors, conveyancers and others, and has been highly commended for efficiency and on the excellent facilities it affords for the convenient acquiring of important and necessary information.

Access to the books in the library and the archives is limited to employes of the Bureau only, who are all attaches of the City Clerk's office who have been assigned to this most important work. This rule has been found necessary to assure safe and orderly control of the documents of every description that make up the unit of the archives of the city, and examinations, official or otherwise, is permitted in the presence of an attache only.

During the year under review 1104 queries were received from all sources and acted upon. Among these were included inquiries from municipal officers, civic bodies and individuals of this and 371 other cities. The data requested related to almost every function of municipal administration, involving more or less research. Duplicates of answers to every query received are filed for reference. These duplicates collectively furnish data of municipal methods and accomplishments here and elsewhere that is of the greatest value.

Researching is done for the several city departments, saving them the time and expense incident to such work.

The various departments of the city government are constantly adding to the archives, filing monthly or oftener such of their books and papers as are not in current use. These are carefully classified and filed.

The accessions to the library of the Bureau for the past year were as follows:

Ten hundred and thirty-one books and pamphlets were received. Of these 508 were municipal publications from 116 cities and towns of the United States, 103 from foreign cities, 104 State publications from 32 States of this country, 185 Federal publications, 12 Essex County publications and 99 Miscellaneous publications relating to the City of Newark. There were also 32 general publications received, official and nonofficial.

One thousand two hundred and forty-six books and pamphlets relating to local administration were sent to 215 cities and towns.

THE MUNICIPAL BUREAU OF EMPLOYMENT.

(Branch of City Clerk's Office.)

This Bureau was established on November 15, 1909, its purpose being to reduce enforced idleness through the operation of the bureau as a free employment exchange.

Opportunity is afforded all unemployed male and female inhabitants to register with the bureau, which seeks to induce employers of all grades of employes to apply to it for help wanted.

Registration is accomplished through the mail or by personal appearance, the bureau investigating the records of the registrants, thereby enabling it to meet the requirements of employers without delay.

Help is furnished on the personal application of employers or on mail or telephone orders.

The affairs are conducted without undue publicity, the policy being to make the service acceptable in every way so that employers and the unemployed will freely avail themselves of the opportunities of the exchange.

From January 1st to December 31st, 1912, 4,394 persons registered for employment, of which 2,642 were males, 1,752 females.

Employment was procured during the year for 3,406 persons—1,736 males, 1,670 females.

Since the establishment of the bureau there were 13,801 persons registered—9,252 males, 4,549 females.

Many applications were withdrawn, leaving 818 applications on file—604 males, 214 females—December 31st, 1912.

Previous to 1886 the rate was adjusted by Assessors, and not by Commissioners.

Taxes and Assessments.

Taxes are levied on all property commencing May 20th, each year.

The time for making statements is May 20th to June 30th, each year.

The books are open for public inspection from the first Tuesday to the last Tuesday in July. During this time the Board will sit to hear objections to assessments.

Commencing October 20th, the Receiver of Taxes' office is open from 8 A. M. to 2 P. M. Saturday, from 8 A. M. to 12 M. to receive payment of taxes.

Discount from October 20th to October 31st, inclusive, 1 per cent.

Discount from November 1st to November 20th, inclusive, one-half of 1 per cent.

From November 21st to December 20th, inclusive, exact amount of taxes.

Penalties:

From December 21st, interest at the rate of 12 per cent. per annum, on real estate and personal property.

On April 1st a further charge of ten cents (cost of publication) on each amount (personal) remaining unpaid April 1st of the year following, and after April 14th, 3 per cent. penalty, justice and collection fees and interest at 12 per cent. from December 21st, the year previous.

Personal taxes are in arrears if not paid on or before December 20th of the year in which they are levied, and if not paid on or before April 14th of the following year the Tax Receiver must enforce the payment of the same by distress and sale.

Real Estate.

Taxes on real estate are in arrears if not paid on or before December 20th, and become a lien on the property December 20th.

All taxes on real estate remaining unpaid after the first of July in the year following the levying thereof, must be sold by the city for a period of years or in fee, and if not redeemed by the owner within two years after the sale, the city may give a deed to the person purchasing.

If the taxes are two years in arrears, the city may sell the property under the Martin Act in fee, and a year after the sale may give a deed unless redeemed by the owner.

Street Improvements.

The costs of making all street improvements are ascertained and declared by the Board of Street and Water Commissioners and the Common Council, then forwarded to the Commissioners of Assessment for local improvements, for the purpose of making an assessment on all property benefited thereby. The commissioners examine the work and ascertain what property is benefited by each improvement and make a tentative finding of the amount each piece of property is so benefited. They then advertise in all the daily papers that they will give a hearing to all persons interested in the improvement, and who own property which may be assessed. At such hearing the commissioners hear any and all objections to the assessment made and consider the same. They then finally determine what property is benefited and the amount of such benefit and complete their report, for the court, which, when the same is filed with the County Clerk, fixes a time and place to hear any objections to the same. Notice of which time and place is given by advertisement in the newspapers for five days. At the time and place fixed, any property owners interested may make further objections to the assessment. The court, after hearing and considering the objections, either confirms the same or refers it back to the commissioners for revision and correction. When the assessment made is confirmed, the report is forwarded to the comptroller, who sends out the bills, giving forty days to pay the assessments without interest. If the assessment is not paid at the expiration of the forty days the interest accrues upon the amount from the date of the confirmation.

MAYOR.

Jacob Haussling,

440 High Street.

Jacob Haussling was born February 22, 1855, in Halsey Street, and has lived in the Second Ward all his life. He attended St. Mary's Parochial School, the Second Ward Grammar School and also a business college; learned the trade of marble cutter and practised it for a while, but at the age of seventeen entered actively into the mineral water business which his father had founded for him. When this was started it employed but one horse and wagon; now it is equal in size to any business of the kind in the State.

Largely through the prominence of his father, Henry Haussling, who was for many years a leader of the German-American element in the city, besides having many friends among other classes, Jacob Haussling was well known while still a young man. He identified himself at an early age with the Democratic party, and in 1888 received a large vote in the party convention for the nomination of Sheriff, his friends having put him forward without his knowledge or consent. The following year he was named for County Register, and, after an exciting campaign, was beaten by Richard Coogan, Republican, by seventeen votes in a total poll of 62,000. In 1890 Mr. Haussling received the nomination for Sheriff and was elected by a plurality of 3,000 over Henry M. Doremus. In 1896, when the free silver propaganda had alienated thousands of New Jersey Democrats, he consented to lead the battle of his party again in a race for the same office. As before, he was pitted against Henry M. Doremus, who this time was successful, though Mr. Haussling ran 8,000 ahead of his ticket. Again in 1899 Mr. Haussling was nominated for Sheriff. The Republican nominee, John Bonnell, retired a week before the election, and George Virtue, who was substituted, was elected. In 1898 Mr. Haussling had run for the Assembly on what was known as the Big Ticket, all the Democratic nominees being men of much prominence. In 1902 Mr. Haussling was urged by many friends to make another battle for the Shrievalty, but he refused to do so and the nomination went to William C. Nicoll, who was elected. In 1906 Mr. Haussling consented, at the solicitation of many friends in both parties, to make a race for the Democratic nomination for Mayor. The political situation was full of interest because of the recent enactment of a so-called Bishops' bill to regulate the liquor traffic, and of the heavy increase in the tax burdens of the citizens of Newark. Mr. Haussling won at the Democratic primaries over a number of other competitors, and received the nomination. At the election he was successful, receiving more votes than the total cast for his Republican and Independent opponents. He was inaugurated Mayor of Newark, January 1, 1907, succeeding in that office Henry M. Doremus, against whom he had twice run as a candidate for Sheriff; once successfully and once unsuccessfullly.

In 1908, Mayor Haussling was nominated without opposition by his party and as in 1906 was elected by a substantial majority over the combined votes of his Republican and Independent opponents, though Newark went heavily Republican on the national and the balance of the city ticket. Again in 1910 Mayor Haussling, being renominated without opposition, was re-elected by 7,144 majority over his Republican opponent. He received the fourth nomination from his party in 1912 and was again elected for a term of two years.

J., and during the late war was greatly interested in their welfare, visiting them weekly at Sea Girt, Fall's Church and Dun Loring. His efforts in securing the flags for the regiment and his assistance to the destitute families of the soldiers and sailors of New Jersey will long be remembered. He is affiliated with the Knights of Columbus, Tenth Ward Building and Loan Association, John F. Monahan and Joel Parker Associations and a Trustee of the Newark Museum Association. He is also a member of the Insurance Fund Commission and the Board of School Estimate.

Recognizing his thorough integrity, his untiring efforts and his keen business acumen, he was selected by the people of the Fifth Ward as Alderman in the year 1898 and again in 1900 by unprecedented majorities.

After a period of voluntary retirement, he was forced to emerge again and take up the duties of public office, receiving a greater plurality than was heretofore accorded an Alderman in the Fifth Ward.

While a member of the Common Council, he has served on the most important committees, including Finance, Legislation and Railroads.

With what regard his colleagues hold him can only be attested by his recent elevation to the Presidency of that body, receiving the unanimous vote of both the Republican and Democratic members, a rare occurrence in the selection of a Council President. After two years' service as President of the Council he was signally honored by a unanimous re-election.

In the election of John H. Donnelly to this office for a third time, the people of Newark are assured of the services of a sagacious, resolute, public-spirited official, and one in whom their confidence is not misplaced.
